How Much Money He Found in Them Is Not Known-They Were Taken From the Little Post Office at Glen Ridge, N. J., and the Burgiar Got Also Six Cents.

A porter found in the toilet room of the Cortlandt street ferry house early yesterday morning 100 letters addressed to residents of Glen Ridge, N. J. The letters had all been opened, and their finding disclose the fact that there had been a robbery in the Glen Ridge post office.

The post office inspectors here had heard nothing of a robbery at Glen Ridge, and after the letters were examined Inspector Tom Myers communicated by telephone with the Glen Ridge postmaster. Myers didn't tell of the finding of the letters, but he did ask if a burglar had been around recently. The postmaster reported that a burglar had visited Glen Ridge on Tuesday night, but got only five or six cents for his | yesterday afternoon and part of the load trouble.

The Glen Ridge post office is in the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad depot, and Thomas Moritz is both the ticket agent and the postmaster. He has held both places many years. The post office and railroad ticket office are really one. Postmaster Moritz closes up his office every night at 8 o'clock. That means that

He found the thin wooden door leading into the ticket and post office ajar, and an examination showed it had been pried open with a jimmy. Moritz made a hasty open with a jimmy. Moritz made a hasty examination of the office, but the only thing examination of the office, but the only thing he could find missing was a few cents he had left in a tin box on a table. None of the letters, which were all in their owners' boxes, seemed to have been touched. The railroad ticket rack didn't look depleted, and as there was nothing else of value in the office the postmaster figured he was out only six cents and the expense that it would cost to repair the door.

The postmaster seemed to be surprised that the inspectors had not informed him of the finding of the letters.

"It is news to me," he said. "No one here has inquired for an expected letter, and I don't think any of the stolen ones contained money. I don't keep registered letters in the office overnight, so the thief did not get much. No stamps are kept here overnight either, and I carry in my pocket the money received for railroad tickets. I don't keep a safe, simply because that would be an inducement to crooks to see how easy they could crack it. New Brunswick, N. J., Jan. 14.—Isaac Van Doren Flagg, a clerk in the money order and registry department of the post office, was arrested this morning on the charge of having stolen letters. The Sherman, Crook, Bufford, Warren and Meade will soon be joined by the Dix, which would make in port a fleet capable of transporting at short notice between 7,000 and 8,000 men.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 14 .- Orsino E. Jones, formerly of the Republican State committee, this afternoon issued the following statement as to his understanding of the status of the charges against Justice Hooker and Tax Commissioner Stearns in connection with the postal scandals:

"There is a provision of the United States revised statutes, known as Section 5440. which I desire to call to the attention of the President of the United States and the Department of Justice, in connection with the Dunkirk and Fredonia Post Offices. This provision reads as follows: "If two or more persons conspire either to commit an offense against the United States or to defraud the United States in any manner, or for any purpose, and one or more of such parties do any act to effect the object of the conspiracy, all the parties to such conspiracy shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one thousand dollars and not more than ten thousand dollars, and to imprisonment not more than two years.

"If the Bristow report is true, it is difficult to understand why there was not a conspiracy between the parties involved in the transaction and George W. Beavers, and it is not possible that the three years statute of limitations would commence to run until the final act in the conspiracy, which was not until within a few months in the case of those illegally drawing salaries, and the rental contract is still in existence. Here is a chance to reach both of these men if they are guilty, and it is up to the Federal authorities and the State Legislature to act before the statute of limitations protects more of the people implicated in the postal frauds.

"The President and Mr. Bristow have made these charges of corruption which have been brought to the very doors of these men and there is no room for a compromise with the duty in such a case.

"If the charges as made are true there can be little doubt that the evidence exists to establish the conspiracy to defraud the Government, for it is not to be presumed that these frauds worked themselves out. or that the relatives and political friends of Messrs. Hooker and Stearns were picked out and given fat places with no work to to without the active participation of both Arbitration of Essential Principles, No Fixed Maximum of Work, No Walking Delegates in the Shop and No Prohibition of Apprentices Hereafter.

ples, which, the members say, will guile them in their declings with labor unions

First—This association affirms that absolute personal independence of the individual to work or not to work, to employ or not to employ, is a fundamental principle which should never be questioned or assailed; that upon it depends the security of our whole social fabric and business prosperity. While upholding this principle as an essential safeguard for all concerned, this association would appeal to employers in the building trades to recognize that there are many opportunities for good in associations of workmen, and, while condemning and opposing improper action upon their part, they should aid and assist them in all just and honorable purposes; and that while upon fundamental principles it would be useless to arbitrate, there are still many points upon which conferences and arbitrations are perfectly right and proper; and that upon such points it is a manifest duty to take advantage of the opportunities afforded by associations to confer together, to the end that strikes, lockouts and other disturbances may be prevented. When such conferences are entered into care should be taken to state clearly in advance that this fundamental principle must be maintained.

Second, That there shall be no imitation as to the amount of work a man shall perform during his working days.

Third—That there shall be no restriction of the use of machinery or tools.

Fourth—That there shall be no restriction of the use of any manufactured material, except prison made.

Fifth—That no person shall have the right to interfere with the workmen during working hours.

Sixth—That the use of apprentices shall

There was a meeting of the depositors of the Bank of Staten Island, which closed its doors when its cashier and practical owner, Otto Ahlmann, committed suicide on New Year's eve, in Felten's Hall, Stapleton, last night. So far as he could learn the bank accounts were about $152,000 short. This meant that 60 per cent. of the money on deposit was available for payment. There appears, he said, to be two ways by which the loss to depositors may be reduced. One was to sue the directors of the bank on the ground that on Dec. 12 they certified that the bank was in good condition. The second, to sue the executors of the estate of Otto Ahlmann.

A committee of fifteen was appointed to wait upon the bank examiners and Supt. Kilburn and learn from them the exact condition of the bank and what action could be taken by the depositors, and to recommend a man for receiver. The comrecommend a man for receiver. The committee will report on next Monday at 4 P. M., to which time the meeting later adjourned, after practically instructing its committee to recommend George A. Wood

The committee will also inquire into the liability, if any, of the Bank of Commerce in Manhattan, the clearing house agent of the Bank of Staten Island, for paying out about $70,000 of the funds of the bank of Staten Island after the latter had closed ts doors, and ascertain the criminal lia-pility of the directors of the Bank of Staten
